Workplace Essentials Training for Public Housing Residents

Three public housing residents successfully completed a Workplace Essentials Training course provided by the Minnesota Resource Center (MRC). By participating in the training, the residents gained the skill sets needed for today's changing workforce. Workplace Essentials is a 60-hour training program that provides an employer-driven technical curriculum and extensive work-readiness training including topics such as: core computer skills, professional communications, MS Office Suites, financial literacy, applied math, interpersonal skills and time management.

The collaboration with MRC made it possible for the PHA to offer quality career services to individuals who are taking the initiative to reach their employment and self-sufficiency goals.
